

OVERVIEW: NETWORKING STYLES SURVEY

Throughout your professional career, Networking is one of the critical skills necessary to become a successful leader and climb the organizational ladder. Even if you would characterize your current networking abilities as good, you may feel that certain areas could be improved. Failing to 'Work Your Network' is a common error, and often causes work climates that are not conducive to productive work environments.

The secret is knowing how to turn casual conversations into useful connections. With clear goals and bottom-line skills, networking works!

By trying to learn the right way of building relationships we dismiss our natural strength.

AIM Strategies[®] has come up with the "Networking Styles Assessment" that helps you find a style which is comfortable for you. This Assessment takes a couple minutes but offers you actionable insights about your style of communications.

Please contact AIM Strategies[®] to learn more about our Networking Styles Assessment.
